COMPARING FORCES.

The all-important issue in congress this session will be the coinage question. The country has been worked up to a good deal of feeling on the subject, and especially from the west and south come a strong and united opposition to the suspension of the coinage of the silver dollar. Since the opening of congres the Washington Republican made a canvass of the question among the members, which showed that in the house of representatives 128 favored suspension, and 197 opposed it. Of the 128 who expressed an opinion favorable to suspension, 38 were democrats, and 90 republicans. Of the 197 who pronounced themselves against suspension, 144 were democrats and 53 republicans. The canvass by states as given by the Republican, is as follows:

States.	Against Suspension.	For Suspension.
Alabama	8	0
Arkansas	5	0
California	6	0
Colorado	1	0
Connecticut	0	4
Delaware	1	0
Florida	1	0
Georgia	8	0
Illinois	15	3
Indiana	11	2
Iowa	7	0
Kansas	7	0
Kentucky	11	0
Louisiana	6	0
Maine	1	3
Maryland	0	6
Massachusetts	1	11
Michigan	9	3
Minnesota	3	0
Mississippi	7	0
Missouri	13	1
Nebraska	3	0
Nevada	1	0
New Hampshire	0	2
New Jersey	7	0
New York	4	30
North Carolina	9	0
Ohio	13	8
Oregon	1	0
Pennsylvania	4	24
Rhode Island	0	2
South Carolina	5	0
Tennessee	10	2
Texas	11	0
Vermont	0	3
Virginia	8	1
West Virginia	3	1
Wisconsin	5	1
Total	197	128

The members from Wisconsin were reported as giving the following opinion:

Against suspension—Caswell, Rankin, Thomas, Price and Stephenson.

For suspension—Bragg, LaFollette, VanSchaick, and Guenther.

The canvass in detail does not seem to have been made in the senate, although the vote in the aggregate has been given as follows: For suspension, 35; against suspension, 44.

Political lines are not squarely drawn on the question of coinage, although by far a larger number of democrats are in favor of the continuance of coinage than republicans. In both branches of congress the number of democrats who favor suspension is 43, while there are 117 republicans. There are 68 republicans who are against suspension, but the number of democrats holding the same position is 173. So that there are far more republicans in congress supporting the democratic administration on the coinage question than there are democrats. This is one of the anomalies of politics, but after all it is not strange that it does exist when one thinks of the spirit and aim of the democratic leaders.

There may be some errors in this canvass of the congressional vote, but not a sufficient number to materially change the figures herewith given. When the vote in congress is taken this fact will be brought to light that the east wants suspension, while the south and west are almost solid against it.

The New York Sun calls attention to the curious fact that Mark Twain's article, in the December Century, entitled, "The Private History of a Campaign that Failed" is, by an odd coincidence, a contemporaneous supplement to chapter 18 in the first volume, just printed, of General Grant's memoirs. It appears that the only time that General Grant was really scared was when he had to meet the little army in which his future publisher was a private. At Palmyra, Grant, then a colonel, was ordered to move against Colonel Thomas Harris, who was said to be encamped at the little town of Florida, some twenty-five miles away. In his memoirs General Grant tells how his heart kept getting higher and higher as he approached the enemy, until he felt it in his throat, but when he reached a point where he expected to see them and found they had fled, his heart resumed its place. Mark Twain was one of the "enemy," and that he and his fellow soldiers were equally frightened appears in his frank confession in the December Century. The difference between the two soldiers was that Mark Twain was thrown into such trepidation that he then and there abandoned forever the profession of arms, whereas General Grant made on that occasion the discovery that the enemy were as much afraid of him as he had been of them. "This," says General Grant, "was a view of the question I had never taken before, but it was one I never forgot afterward. From that event to the close of the war, I never experienced trepidation upon confronting an enemy, though I always felt more or less anxiety."

It is claimed by those favoring the suspension of silver coinage, including the president and secretary of the treasury that when the government undertakes to pay its bonds in silver the country will at once go to a silver basis and the gold in the country will disappear. This, it is further claimed, will cause great financial distress. Possibly this belief is well founded. It will only be certainly known when it is tried. There is just no prospect at all that congress will stop the silver coinage until it is tried. It is the most astonishing thing about this administration that President Cleveland and Secretary Manning do not see this now.—Madison Democrat.

Verily the signs of the time indicate that the government will have to change its policy in regard to coinage; and whether it will be good or ill for the country, no one can tell. If congress, by an enactment, shall compel the secretary of the treasury to pay the bonds in siver, it is evident that were the operation of the law against the best interests of the country, it would be repealed before any serious harm was done. The only way to settle the question is to put silver to the test. If it works badly, it will soon repeal itself.

The postoffice war at Ripon is over and that without any bloodshed, for which the good people of that pretty city should be thankful. Things looked a little ugly there on Friday, when Postmaster Upham told Dr. Eberhard, the newly appointed postmaster, to go to h—ll, and because he didn't go, kicked him out into the street. Dr. Eberhard is one of the cleverest men in the state, and had good reason for objecting to go where Mr. Upham had an anxious desire to see him go. When the old postmaster had a little time to ponder on such a harsh command and such a brutal personal attack, he repented, and told the doctor that he need not go, and beside that, apologized for kicking him into the street, and then gave him the postoffice. This is a very happy issue out of a difficulty that at first looked quite serious.

A democratic paper speaks in this wise: "There is something wrong with the present republican hub-bub in favor of Dakota's admission as a state. Montana wants to be admitted also, and her growth and population as well as her prosperity and prospects form no untenable grounds upon which an admission claim might be filed. Yet there is no republican demand for Montana's admission, nor is there any likelihood that Logan and the boys will howl themselves livid in her immediate interests." Yes, but Logan and the boys would vote for Montana when it has as good a claim to an admission into the Union as Dakota. The only reason the democrats object to Dakota is that it didn't go through the formality of electing two democratic senators and a democratic member. No democrat in that case would object to the admission of Dakota

Another pount on the silver question, coming from the Current: "Let us suppose a fashionable church owed $120,000 and that $20,000 of this sum were floating indebtedness. Then let us suppose the receipts of that church were $40,000 a year and its expenses $25,000. Now let us suppose that, at the yearly meeting, the treasurer were to report that he had kept $15,000 of extra money in his safe all the year, while he had been paying 3 per cent on the floating debt, or $450. Would not the church people feel like taking $450 out of that treasurer's bond? Now this is exactly the way the national finances have been run for a year, except that the inquirer may increase the figure exactly ten thousand times."

The Ohio penitentiary, during the last year of republican administration, paid its expenses and had a surplus of $53,000. The past year shows a deficit of $153,874 under democratic administration—Toledo Blade.

When a certain good natured man broke his arm he said he had occasion to be thankful because it was not his neck. The people of Ohio have reason to be thankful that the democratic administration of Ohio is behind only $153,000.

The advantages of advertising are strikingly illustrated in the order just received by Mr. S. R. Niles, the Boston advertising agent, for one insertion of an advertisement in one publication for $2,000. This is probably the largest order ever given for one insertion of an advertisement, and shows the extent to which advertising is done by those who appreciat its benefits.

TRAGEDY IN KANSAS CITY.

A Rejected Lover Kills His Successful Rival and Himself.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 28.—A sensation was caused here Sunday by the killing of Frank B. Vaughn and the suicide of his slayer, Abraham Nave Jr. Christmas eve Vaughn and Miss Elizabeth Strover were married and shortly after the ceremony, a bullet whistled through the room. The bride then told her husband that her cousin, Nave, had proposed marriage, was rejected, and threatened to kill her and her husband. The wedded couple spent their honeymoon visiting and driving with relatives. Sunday afternoon Nave rode up and shot Vaughn dead. Galloping away to his home immediately, Nave no sooner reached home than he shot himself through the head, dying instantly. His mother fell in spasms, and is expected to die.

Forbidding Orange Processions.

ST. JOHNS, Newfoundland, Dec. 28.—The Newfoundland executive has issued a proclamation forbidding an Orange procession in Harbor Grace, or in any of the other ports on Conception bay. Numerous affidavits were made before Judge Bennett affirming the certainty of a disturbance of the peace in the event of a public demonstration or procession. Sir Ambrose Shea has been appointed governor of Newfoundland, being the first native and Catholic governor since the days of Cabot.

The Detroit Church Row.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 28.—There was another Polish Roman Catholic mob Saturday, but the police held it in check sufficiently to prevent an outbreak further than the smashing of the windows of a saloonist who is an anti-Kolasinski man. Bishop Borgess, states that Father Kolasinski stands charged with immoralities which will not permit him to stand at a Catholic altar for a single hour, and that the evidence is overwhelming.

Heavy Storm on the Atlantic.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Dec. 28.—The heaviest storm of the season began on Saturday afternoon and raged with fearful violence until after midnight. The wind at times attained a velocity of sixty miles an hour. About six inches of snow fell which has been piled into drifts five and six feet high around the city. The seas were running mountains high. The storm was very severe on the Nova Scotia coast, and it is feared serious disasters to shipping have occurred.

Our readers will find the finest assortment of gentlemens' and ladies' toilet sets at Prentice & Evenson's drug store, opposite the post office, and the prices are much lower than last season. They also offer an elegant line of pearl opera glasses, in all the latest styles. Very cheap.

A BIRD IN THE HAND

IS WORTH SEVERAL ON THE BRITISH "UNCLAIMED ESTATES" BUSH.

Some Valuable Information for Those Whom It May Concern—A Misleading Circular—Miss Cleveland's Reform —Refuses an Office—Gossip.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 28.—There are a great many Americans who are now and have been heretofore subscribing money to prosecute claims for large estates alleged to be held for the heirs by the British government. For this class of citizens a report on the subject made by Mr. Henry White, one of the secretaries of the American legation in London, has a mournful interest. The report was made by order of Minister Lowell, and intended as an answer to innumerable inquiries addressed to the legation by American citizens who had been led to believe themselves entitled to large sums of money from unclaimed British estates. Mr. White says that these schemes are gotten up by designing persons on both sides of the Atlantic, whose object is to line their pockets with the money of their dupes and that not one claim in a thousand has any validity whatever.

The paper is a long one, and the subject is treated exhaustively. Mr. White says the archives of the legation show that a considerable proportion of its foreign correspondence is composed of letters upon this subject. Mr. White describes the results of inquiries relating to the "Jonnens estate," to which there were many American claimants, showing that the property went to the heirs-at-law long before American claimants were ever heard of, and that the latter never had the shadow of a title to it. Moreover, had the title once been a good one, it would long ago have become worthless by the operation of the statute of limitations. Mr. White continues:

"Any attempts, therefore, to recover real estates from the crown or individuals after a lapse of twelve years (which may be extended to thirty under certain circumstances), and personal property after a lapse of twenty years, however valid the claim of the person making the attempt may have been originally, is certain to end in failure. All members consequently of the 'Jonnens Association of the United States of America' may rest assured that their subscriptions are simply money thrown away—if their object be the recovery of the Jonnens estate.

Similar to this case are the "Hodges estate," the "Bradford estate," the "Hyde estate," the "Horne estate," and many others, which are described as among "the ordinary myths by which so many of our countrymen have been beguiled." With regard to large sums supposed to be awaiting American claimants in the Bank of England, Mr. White quotes from a letter written by the chief accountant of that institution:

"There are no large amounts of unclaimed stock or dividends standing on our books. Speaking generally, without having made an exhaustive research, which would involve some considerable labor, there are very few amounts of £1,000, and none that exceed this sum by more than £100 or £200."

In regard to the fabulous fortunes locked up in chancery he says:

"To judge from the letters received at this legation from the United States in reference to unclaimed funds in chancery, many of our countrymen must imagine that institution to be a depository of incalculable millions, a goodly share of which can be easily withdrawn upon the mere institution of a claim by the American minister, and without requirement by the court of any particulars as to the name of the suit, the relationship of the imant to the parties therein, or to he original owner of the estate claimed. It is very rarely that in any communication sent us on this subject a smaller sum is mentioned than 'several millions,' and frequently our correspondents state that they are entitled to 'twenty, fifty, and even more' millions. It will doubtless cause surprise and disappointment to such as these to be informed that the whole amount of money in the custody of the court of chancery at the present time is about £34,000,000, of which £26,000,000 belong to owners who are known, leaving about £1,000,000 only of unclaimed or dor t nds.

Charged with Misleading Soldiers.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 28.—Commissioner Sparks, of the general land office, has written a letter to a law firm in Kansas, in which he discusses the contents of a circular purporting to have been issued by the persons addressed. Among the statements in the circular to which the commissioner takes exception is one that "the government owes each soldier and sailor a farm of 160 acres." This, says the commissioner, is a statement that soldiers of the late war, as such, are entitled to 160 acres, which is not true. "The widows and orphans of deceased soldier and sailors can make entries and secure 160 acres of choice land without residence," says the circular. The commissioner considers this assertion misleading, and calls upon the firm for an explanation, failing in which they will be disbarred from practicing before the department.

Will Hold Them Responsible.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 28.—The president, finding that it takes too much time to personally investigate such matters, has determined hereafter to hold senators and representatives strictly responsible for the character and capacity of men they recommend for office, and whatever charges are preferred against applicants so recommended he will leave the senate to determine. He believes that this division of responsibility with the senate is proper and is what the constitution intended. This change of policy has staggered a great many senators and members who have been in the habit of recommending to him applicants for office merely to get rid of them, and thus throw on him the responsibility of deciding upon their character and efficiency.

New Year's at the White House.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 28.—The official programme for President Cleveland's reception on New Year's Day, as announced, varies but little from those adopted by his predecessors for years past. He will receive members of his cabinet and the diplomatic corps at 11 a. m., and the supreme court justices at 11:30. From that hour to 1 p. m. he will devote his time to shaking hands with senators, representatives, district officers, officers of the army and navy, assistant secretaries of department and bureau officials. At 1 p. m. the public reception will begin, and last one hour. The president will be assisted by his sister, Miss Cleveland, and the ladies of the cabinet.

"No Smoking."

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 28.—Miss Cleveland is introducing reforms at the White House, and has had an order issued prohibiting smoking in the corridors and in the vestibule. Congressmen who are compelled to wait for the president have been in the habit of sitting around with cigars in their mouths, but are now politely requested to drop them in the cuspidors. Notices have been posted up all around the house announcing that smoking is prohibited, and some of the visitors do not like it a bit. They talk about "petticoat government."

The Chicago World's Fair.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 28.—A bill will be introduced in congress this winter to aid the International exposition which is to be held in Chicago in 1892 to celebrate the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America. The exposition will probably be planned after the centennial at Philadelphia, and legislation will likely be asked of congress similar to that in aid of the centennial.

A Testimonial to Holman.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 28.—Representative Holman, of Indiana, has received from employes on the soldiers' roll of the house a handsome photograph album as a testimonial of their appreciation of his continuous kindness toward them since he has been in congress. There are fourteen union veterans on the soldiers' roll, most of whom are Republicans.

One More Tender Conscience.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 28.—One-half of a $500 legal-tender note was received at the treasury department Saturday in an envelope postmarked New York, with the following letter: "Restitution internal revenue publish receipt. Keep record of number of bill; more later."

Rounds Will Stay Till Spring.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 28.—Public Printer Rounds says that he has decided to engage in private business when his term of office expires in April next. There is an understanding between the president and Mr. Rounds that the latter shall complete his term of office.

Doesn't Want the Office.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 28.—John Bigelow of New York, whose nomination as assistant United States treasurer at New York was confirmed by the senate on the 22d inst., has resigned.

Bills Signed by the President.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 28.—The president has approved the bill granting a pension to Mrs. Grant and removing the political disabilities of Gen. Lawton, of Georgia.

DYNAMITE AT CHICAGO.

Apparent Attempt to Wreck a Private Residence.

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—What looks like an outrageous but flimsy attempt to wreck the handsome residence of Judge Lambert Tree, United States minister to Belgium, was discovered Saturday morning. Judge Tree's mansion is occupied by Gen. A. C. McClurg, of Jansen, McClurg & Co., booksellers. It stands at the corner of Cass and Ontario streets and is built of granite. Early Saturday morning a servant girl went to the front door and noticed on the top of the terrace a tin can about two inches long and an inch and a half in diameter. She was afraid to touch it, and one of the men about the place picked it up and examined it. In one end was a screw cap, and into this a fuse had been inserted, but which had not been ignited. The police were notified and the can taken to the lake front, where another piece of fuse was added and set fire to, and the officers sought a safe place with great celerity. They had not long to wait before an explosion took place that tore up the ground for several feet. The can, as ascertained previously, contained nitro-glycerine, but not in sufficient quantity, nor was it placed properly, to have done any serious damage to the residence or its occupants.

How it came there is a mystery. Neither Judge Tree nor Gen. McClurg is known to have an enemy who would attempt to do them such a dastardly outrage, and the police are inclined to the belief that it was the work of one of the fools who are not dead yet, and who had his mind intent on playing a very dangerous and idiotic practical joke.

Shaefer Declared the Champion.

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—The last of the series of billiard games to decide the tie between Shaefer, Slosson and Vignaux came off Saturday night in the Central music hall, the contestants being Shaefer and Slosson. Shaefer won the lead and the playing was uninteresting for the first nineteen innings, when Shaefer scored 54, and Slosson followed with 70. From that on "great" billiards were played by the wizard, who made 150 in the twenty-third inning, and Slosson added 55 to his string shortly afterward, and from that on the New Yorker had the game all his own way, Slosson simply standing by and watching it. At the beginning of the twenty-eighth inning Shaefer had 148 to make to win and and he made it, thus settling the championship for this game. The heaviest runs were: Schaefer, 82, 49, 54, 158, 110, 42, 53, 148; Slosson, 55, 79, 55, 71. Schaefer's average, 28 16-28; Slosson's, 19 16-27.

After the close of the tournament Vignaux and Schaefer met and signed an agreement to play five games of fourteen-inch balk-line billiards for $2,500 a side, in New York city. The games are to be played on five consecutive nights, and are to be 600 points each.

Mrs. Stores' Christmas Gift.

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—In looking over the papers of the late Emory A. Storrs a life policy for $20,000 in the Equitable Life Insurance company of New York was found, together with a receipt for the payment of the first premium. The local agent said that no premium had been paid, and the home office declined to pay for the same reason. Proofs were hunted up and Mr. High, the attorney in charge, went to New York and laid the matter before the company, stating that he would compromise on $10,000, and if this was declined would sue for $20,000. The result was that the company surrendered, and on Christmas Day Mr. High had the pleasure of presenting Mrs. Storrs a check for the former amount.

AUSTRIAN PREJUDICE.

HOW IT AFFECTS THE SOCIAL STANDING OF DIPLOMATS.

Ex-Minister Francis on the Keiley Affair —A Jewish Wife No Incumbrance Officially, but Socially Ostracised— Some Instances of Intolerance.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—The Tribune publishes the following: John M. Francis, lately United States minister at the court of Vienna, to which A. M. Keiley was appointed as his successor by President Cleveland, was seen Saturday by a reporter at the house of J. C. Havemeyer, at Yonkers. Mr. Francis withdrew from the mission on Aug. 3, since which time, owing to the refusal of the Austrian government to receive Mr. Keiley, the duties of the office have been performed by James Penner Leo, secretary of legation and charge d'affaires ad interim.

"Did you understand the Austrian government to base its objection to receiving Mr. Keiley either on the fact that his wife was a Jewess or on the fact that their marriage was only a civil contract?" asked the reporter.

"I did not," replied Mr. Francis, emphatically. "Neither of these considerations was looked upon by Austria officially as ground for the rejection, and it was never for a moment intended that this government should be so advised. I had long conversations with Count Kalnocky on the subject at the time the difficulty arose, and while he pointed out that a Jewess or even a lady of proximate Semitic origin could have no social status in Vienna, he never hinted to me officially that that would in any way influence the judgment of the Austrian government. I know that Hebrews are not received in the aristocratic society of Austria, or at least of the capital, yet I am sure the government takes no notice of this fact officially, while it is quite powerless to alter it even if it so desired. I am aware also that civil marriage is not recognized in Austria. They have civil marriages there, it is true, though these require to be sealed by the solemnity of an ecclesiastical ceremony before they are looked upon as valid. Yet even this fact would not exclude the only accredited representative of a foreign country. I think, for instance, if a Hebrew had been appointed instead of Mr. Keiley, he would have been received and recognized in his official capacity. His position would certainly be a very uncomfortable one in a social sense under the prevailing usages of the Viennese society, but as far as official relations are concerned I don't think he would suffer."

"How far does the prejudice against the Hebrews extend?"

"It only affects their social relations. Some of the largest business men in Vienna are Jews. While they mix with Christians in their affairs, they have a distinct society of their own. Baron Rothschild appears just once a year at court at a state ball, stays a short time, and goes away, while his wife never appears there at all. The baron's son is sometimes invited to a private dinner by a minister or an ambassador, but never to a diplomatic banquet. Indeed, however eminent a Hebrew may be, or however commanding his ability, the doors of the exclusive circles of Catholic Vienna are permanently closed against him."

"Does such a prejudice exist with regard to any other race?"

"I am acquainted with a diplomat at Vienna, the representative of an eastern government, who received an Oriental training and is wedded to Oriental customs. That diplomat goes everywhere and is popular. His wife, on the contrary, receives no social recognition whatever. Of course you will understand I am not defending their custom, only stating it."

"What led to the current belief that Mrs. Keiley's origin was the reason of her husband's rejection?"

"Simply an unfortunate mistake on the part of Baron Schaeffer, the Austrian representative at Washington. Count Kalnoky telegraphed to him in his reply to his announcement of the appointment of Mr. Keiley that his government would like to have an opportunity of considering the appointment before finally consenting to it, as is the custom in such cases, and confidentially hinted at the known fact of Mrs. Keiley being a Jewess. Baron Schaeffer's action in giving publicity to this confidential communication was gratuitous on his part and certainly ill advised. It was only natural for Mr. Bayard to protest under the circumstances, and of course he did only what any American would be likely to do in his place."

"What harm could result if diplomatic relations should be broken off between the two countries?"

"A suspension of diplomatic relations would operate injuriously to our interest in this, that the Austrian government would be likely to give the usual twelve months' notice of the termination of the treaty. That treaty affords the only real security we have for the protection of Austro-American citizens."

"Who would be losers by an abrogation of the treaty?"

"We should. Austria might first of all assume, as Germany is assuming, the doctrine 'once a subject always a subject,' and therefore, on the return of an Austro-American citizen to Austria, he would be arrested and impressed into the army. Then, by discrimination against our machinery, of which enormous quantities are used in Austria, it could be driven out of the market."

Agnes Was Not a Wife.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 28.—United States Circuit Judge Sawyer Saturday morning rendered a decision in favor of plaintiff in the suit of Sharon vs. Hill, brought to declare void the alleged marriage contract. The judge said that Miss Hill's refusal to produce the alleged marriage certificate before the examiner tended to show that the said certificate was a forgery, which, the judge said was confirmed by an analysis of the testimony. He also decided that the "dear wife" letters were forgeries. The action was brought by William Sharon against Sarah Althea Hill to declare null and void the contract upon which Superior Judge Sullivan granted the defendant a divorce from plaintiff a year ago.

The Alleged Mrs. Kittson.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—The Supreme Court Saturday denied the motion of Mrs. Mary Kittson, otherwise Minnie Clark, for alimony and counsel fees in the suit brought by her for a separation from H. L. Kittson, son of the St. Paul millionaire, to whom she claims she was married in April last.

A Lumber Firm Assigns.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—The firm of W. D. Dunbar & Co., lumber dealers, made an assignment Saturday without preferences. Mr. Dunbar says that the cause of the assignment was the suspension of M. C. Hyett & Co., of Detroit. Liabilities and assets not known.

A SIXTY-FOOT PLUNGE.

One Man Killed and Others Injured by a Singular Railway Accident.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Dec. 28.—The train leaving New Haven bound west at 3:58, a. m., known as the "Big Owl" met with a most singular accident at Pelhamville station Sunday morning which resulted in the death of one of the train hands, the serious injury of another and the general shaking up of all the people aboard the train. The train was speeding rapidly over the down grade between New Rochelle and Mount Vernon and when opposite Pelhamville station the engine struck an obstruction on the track and went over an embankment nearly sixty feet high. The tender and mail-car followed. The other cars composing the train did not leave the track, although two sleepers were thrown on their sides. The mail-car was thrown nearly on end at the bottom of the bank. The fall broke the coupling of the air-brake pipe which caused the brakes to be applied automatically and the six passenger-cars behind the mail-car were stopped almost instantly.

The obstruction on the track which caused the accident was the platform of the railway station, which had been torn from its foundation and thrown across the track by the heavy wind which prevailed during Saturday night. The total loss to the railway company is about $20,000. The following are the casualties: Eugene Blake, fireman, of this city, married a few months, killed; C. P. Turner, of Boston, mail clerk, severely hurt about the breast and back. He was taken to the Grand Union hotel, New York. The three other mail clerks on the train were all more or less bruised. Engineer Ralph Phillips was badly hurt in the back. William Gamble, of Springfield, Mass., baggagemaster, was injured about the back and had his shoulders strained. The passengers, of whom there were comparatively few on the train, beyond a shaking up were uninjured.

On the ground of criminal intimacy with a widow, a divorce has been obtained by the wife of George W. Stout, a wholesale grocer of Indianapolis. The whole business, including $10,000 alimony, was transacted in three hours, the husband making no defense.

At the gate of Gen. Grant's tomb, on Christmas day the widow and her son Frederick placed a wreath of flowers. A white-haired veteran from Galena obtained permission to touch it with his lips, but a lady vainly offered the guard $10 for a single flower.

Senator Fair telegraphed from San Francisco to Secretary Manning that the American whaling-ship Arctic, with a crew of forty men, has probably been lost in Behring sea, and asked that a search party be sent out. Action toward relief was taken at once.

About 100 cigarmakers and packers left New York Saturday evening for San Francisco, to work in factories heretofore employing Chinese at $5 per 1,000. The transportation bills are paid by the International union. Twenty-four hundred more will join the party along the route to the Missouri river.

Judge Crozier, of Leavenworth, at the request of the attorney general of Kansas, enjoined a wholesale liquor firm from selling goods during the trial of a suit brought against it, and the doors of the store were closed within ten minutes. Five large liquor-dealers are preparing to remove their goods from the city.

Thomas King, a laborer residing in Cologne street, Chicago, went home to supper on Christmas Eve and found his wife intoxicated. The neighbors heard a violent quarrel, and the next day found that King had fled and his wife had been beaten to death. The murderer was arrested Saturday noon, and admitted that he struck the woman with a chair.

Craig Tolliver, who was reputed to be one of the bad spirits of Kentucky, had the audacity to rob a friend of a girl at a dance at Martinsburg. The injured party put a bullet into Tolliver's heart, and then fled to escape lynching. The desperado was marked from head to foot with knife and bullet wounds. His brothers have armed themselves, and are searching trains for his murderer.

Failure in Chicago.

Beak & Bucher, hatters and fur dealers on Market street, confessed judgment last Saturday evening in favor of Joseph Ullman for $18,000. The liabilities of the firm include about $50,000 additional, due to outside parties.

A Captain's Fortunate Discovery.

Capt. Coleman, schr. Weymouth, plying between Atlantic City and N. Y., had been troubled with a cough so that he was unable to sleep, and was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. It not only gave him instant relief, but allayed the extreme soreness in his breast. His children were similarly affected, and a single dose had the same happy effect. Dr. King's New Discovery is now the standard remedy in the Coleman household and on board the schooner. Free Trial Bottles of this Standard Remedy at F. Sherer & Co's Drug Store.

THE SCIENTIFIC PYRE.

FIRST INCINERATION AT THE BUFFALO CREMATORY.

A Corpse Weighing Ninety-Eight Pounds Reduced to Three and Seven-Sixteenth Pounds of Ashes—Description of the Process.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 28.—The Morning Express thus describes the first cremation in Buffalo which took place Sunday in the new temple on Delevan avenue:

The furnace and process is that of Venini, of Milan, and the retort has been constructed under the supervision of the inventor's representative, Signor Geronimo, who came to this country for that purpose. Although the temple—which will be the most æsthetic structure of its kind in the country—it is not yet completed, Geronimo's desire to return to Milan at once made a test necessary, and it was made in the presence of three physicians and a number of directors of the company and the undertaker who furnished the body. A little before 8 o'clock the attendants lighted the fires which burn in little niches which are in the main furnace and which set fire to the gas coming from the main gas generator in the basement. These serve to warm up the furnace preparatory to its being subjected to the intense heat which comes when the principal combustion takes place. Half an hour later the main fire in the gas generator was lit and by 4 o'clock the furnace was ready for the reception of the body. At this time a small volume of white smoke was slowly issuing from the main flue. In the basement is the complicated system of piping which conveys the gases to the retort and to the flue. Here nothing was to be perceived of heat or flame except through little apertures in pipe for the entrance of air.

A little after 10 o'clock the body, wrapped in a shroud, was placed on the car with its head toward the entrance to the furnace. A solution of alum was sprinkled over the shroud and everything was ready. The car was noiselessly rolled to the furnace and by a mechanism attached to the car, the iron slab was moved from the rollers in the top of the carriage, along to the others in the floor of the retort. No heat, smoke or flame escaped from the door of the retort as it was opened; in fact the draft was rather the other way. To the eye nothing was visible, but a mass of seething rosy flame with tongues of yellowish blue fire coming from the flues at the other end of the furnace. The body was placed in the furnace at 10:14 o'clock, and at 11:30 Signor Geronimo announced that the cremation was completed.

Owing to the fact that everything about the furnace was perfectly new, ten minutes were allowed to lapse before the car was rolled up to the furnace and the iron slab with the remains placed on it. The product of the combustion was for the most part in the form of dust, but here and there were pieces of bones which retained a semblance of their forms, but which readily crushed to powder. The ashes (slightly discolored, owing to the process by which the body had been embalmed) were placed in an urn, and thus ended the first cremation in Buffalo. Not at any time could the faintest smell be detected by the enthusiastic advocates of the process who climbed to the top of the flue.

The statistics of the experiment are as follows: weight of body 98 pounds; weight of ashes 3 7-16 pounds; time consumed in the cremation one hour and five minutes. The highest degree of heat attained in the retort as nearly as could be discovered with tests of various metals was 2,282 degree Fahrenheit.

PITH OF THE SITUATION.

"Reserved Rights" That Great Britain Will Insist Upon.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Smalley's special to The Tribune summarizes the British political situation as follows: No English statesman denies propose a scheme for an Irish parliament without reserving the right of the imperial parliament to decide in the last resort whether the Irish assembly exceeds its jurisdiction and without reserving equally the power to annul any bill or resolution hostile or disloyal. The Irish reply that such restriction reduces the Irish parliament to a mere debating society, and insist on a parliament that shall be practically independent. The English rejoin that such a parliament can only lead straight to separation, against which every leader of both parties is an equivocally pledged, and which England refuses even to discuss. The effect in Ireland appears disastrous to Irish Loyalists, demoralizes the police, and drives landlords from the country. Ulster leaders say that no guarantees can protect them, and that if separation comes they are quite resolved to protect themselves. The English papers again point out that the Irish agitation is largely Irish-American, and would collapse Monday, if not sustained by American money. "If Irish at home," says The Standard, "do not care enough for home rule to keep the machinery going at their own expense. The American argument that Ireland ought to have separation, because the majority want it, elicits the query why America refused to allow the southern states to depart when a much greater majority demanded secession."

A Little "Shoreo" at Limerick.

DUBLIN, Dec. 28.—A serious fight between local factions occurred Saturday at Limerick. A mob attacked the house of an obnoxious landlord named Blake in Creagh Lane. Blake and a party of his friends were in the house. They barricaded the doors and windows and withstood a vigorous siege which was maintained two hours. Missiles of all sorts were hurled against the house, breaking several windows and wounding some of the inmates. The besieged party replied to the attack with pistols and shot guns. Twenty men and women were dangerously wounded during the fight. The police finally quelled the riot after arresting about a dozen of the ringleaders.

Of the Best Quality.

We desire to build up a home trade in

Buckwheat Flour,

And we guarantee that all Buckwheat Flour sold from these mills shall be made from Pure Buckwheat, and shall contain no other ingredient.

Our Graham Flour

is made from thoroughly cleaned, Choice, White Winter Wheat. Graham Flour takes its name from Sylvester Graham, the author of a noted treatise on "Bread and Bread Making." It is conceded that bread made from unbolted or Graham Flour, is more healthful and nutritious than fine, white bolted flour, for the reason that it contains more of the gluten, from which the flesh, bone, brain and tissue of the body is built up and sustained.

The whitest and most beautiful bread found upon the tables of the critical American, contains less of the elements of

STRENGTH, HEALTH, AND BEAUTY

Than the dark colored rye bread in Germany, or the heavy loaves found in the knap-sacks of the Russian soldier. Graham bread made from good, clean wheat is very excellent and healthful food. We propose to make and sell this kind of flour.

Corn Meal.

as a staple article of diet in the Eastern and Southern States, and should be more generally used here. Is there a Yankee on the face of the earth, who has wandered so far from the hills of New England, that he has forgotten the baked pork and beans, the rye and the Indian meal bread, or the baked Indian pudding with which his heart and stomach were gladdened during the days of his boyhood. Hoe cake, Johnny cake, mush and milk, corn meal gems, and Indian meal puddings, with pork and bacon, were main articles of diet for the sturdy men and women who subdued and built up the older States of the Union. We offer to the trade, and families, both the bolted and granulated Corn Meal.

Especial attention is called to our

Minnesota Linseed Meal

It is excellent for dairy stock, and horses when fed with other grain.

POSTMASTER GENERAL VILAS' HOME.

Postmaster General Vilas hails from Madison, Wis., and that extremely pretty city is very proud of her handsome and eloquent cabinet officer, who, at the time he was chosen by President Cleveland as one of his advisers, represented her in the Wisconsin Legislature. Madison is also proud because she is the State Capital and possesses a very imposing Capitol building standing in a lovely park. Then Madison may also be proud of Wisconsin University, with its hundreds of students and able faculty; of the Soldiers' Orphans' Home, of the State Lunatic Asylum buildings, and of the many industries which go to make up the prosperity of the thriving little capital. All these institutions have grown up since 1836, at which time Madison was in the wilderness. Pushing and intelligent citizens have made her what she is, and it is pleasant to observe that Madison still possesses a very large proportion of clear-headed men and women, who appreciate a good thing when they see it and are glad to make its merits known.

One of this class of citizens is L. A. Rogers, the baggage-master of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad, who is well known to all Madisonians and by a large part of the traveling public. Mr. Rogers has this to say of how he was cured of a long-standing complaint:

"I suffered with rheumatism for some time, so that it was with great pain that I could move around at all, and I also spent many sleepless nights. I am glad to say that after using two bottles of Athlophoros I am entirely free from pain. No one need suffer from rheumatism if they will give it a fair trial."

George W. Huntley, a dealer in groceries at No. 66 Pinckney street, and a leading merchant and old resident, commends the medicine as follows:

"I have used Athlophoros for rheumatism and can most cheerfully say with the most satisfactory results."

"Mary I. Whiting, of No. 810 University avenue, who has lived in Madison for thirty years and is known and respected by every one, says:

"I have been a victim of severe rheumatism for the past three years, and having tried almost every remedy known without any avail I was much discouraged. Last winter I was afflicted much worse than ever and was induced to try Athlophoros. I am glad to state that I am now free from pain and I pronounce the medicine a God-send for the afflicted."

To these words of commendation may be added those of Mr. T. R. Lutzow, a well-known citizen who says of Athlophoros:

"My wife was seriously afflicted with rheumatism, principally in her arms. She has now used two bottles of Athlophoros and is well and free from pain. I can cheerfully recommend the remedy to my friends and the public as being all that it claims to be."

William Sommers, foreman for B. F. McMillan & Bro., of McMillan, Wis., says that seven bottles of Athlophoros relieved him entirely of rheumatism of five years' standing, which was so acute at times as to compel him to give up work. Three bottles entirely cured his brother-in-law, Louis Zimmering, whom rheumatism had compelled to give up his place as edger in a saw mill. He now fills his old position without the least inconvenience.

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us, as directed. ATHLOPHOROS Co., 112 Wall Street, New York.

HOW TO AVERT CHOLERA.

Hints Worth Heeding, Whether the Pestilence Comes or Not.

[Chicago News.]

"Can Cholera Be Averted?" is the subject of the leading article in The North American Review for August. Drs. Hamilton, Rauch, Peters, Wood, and Leale discuss the question from the various standpoints of the government administrative official, the state sanitary executive, the epidemiologist, the medical teacher, and the local health officer respectively.

While Dr. Peters says that no amount of impure air, impure water, or imprudence in diet will cause cholera, he admits that the smokes, smells, gases or effluvia, coming from dirty streets, gutters, sewers, docks, gas-works, filthy stables, yards, slaughter-houses, or offal-rendering works, will render all cases more severe, or even fatal and hopeless, that contaminated and polluted water is quite as dangerous and injurious in a cholera season as unripe or unwholesome fruits and vegetables and spoiled meats and fish; and that any and every imprudence and mistake in diet will greatly aggravate a case of Asiatic cholera.

To this Dr. Wood adds that it should be remembered that cholera especially attacks the lowest classes of the population, and rages most virulently in the slums. Indeed, he says, if our cities were kept perfectly clean in all their parts, and their water supply pure, cholera would be a disease scarcely to be feared; but the Dives of one block perishes because he has neglected the Lazarus of the next. Thus, unless stringent measures be taken, the so-called Italian quarter of New York will be a raging center of the pestilence. And in Chicago there are similar quarters to be found in almost every ward of the city.

Dr. Leale, speaking of his personal experience in 1866, notes that even where it did occur in sanitary houses, if proper care was taken, it manifested very slight power to extend, and those stricken down recovered when properly nursed; while the inhabitants of badly drained and crowded places ran greater risks. Cholera in healthful homes does not show a tendency to spread. During the epidemic of 1866 the writer, when called early, did not see a single instance of more than one serious case in a sanitary home, and all that had the premonitory symptoms properly treated recovered, except a very small proportion whose attack was ushered in with fatal violence.

How shall we, who are well and strong, care for ourselves if we have to remain in the midst of an epidemic? Do not be frightened, but observe the following rules:

1. Cleanliness in all things—the streets, the home, the person. Keep the cellars, tanks, and sewer connections in good condition. For the person a daily bath, also a wash of the face, hands, teeth, and mouth after each meal.

2. Proper clothing, easily fitting and comfortable. It is better to have too much than too little. A broad flannel band around the abdomen, worn day and night, will be useful.

3. Temperance in all things, with a generous diet of all wholesome articles—fish, meats, vegetables, and clean, ripe, seasonable, native fruits, with extras to a proper degree. If any article is known to disagree with you, avoid it. Do not eat or drink discriminately between meals, and if any distress is caused by improper substances in the stomach, quickly reject them.

Everything which maintains the health of an individual lessens his danger; but it is especially necessary to keep in complete order the gateway primarily assaulted by cholera—i. e., the alimentary canal. A perpetual equanimity, an avoidance of fruit and indigestible foods, excessive caution in the use of purgative medicines, the taking of immediate measures of relief the moment the slightest diarrhea or gastro-intestinal irritation appears—these are essentials for every one.

Death of a Prominent Illinoisan.

KANKAKEE, Ills., Dec. 28.—Judge C. C. Wilcox died here Saturday night at the advanced age of 78 years. He was connected with The Chicago Republican in 1865, when that paper was under the editorial management of Charles A. Dana. Judge Wilcox was a member of the Illinois legislature in 1850, and filled many important offices at various times in connection with the state and county government. As a prominent and unwavering Republican he was widely known and generally esteemed.

The Victims are Buried Deep.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Dec. 28.—Work at No. 1 slope, where the accident occurred at Nanticoke, will be abandoned. It has been found that as fast as debris is removed it flows in again from the great break in the culm-bank above. The company will recompense the relatives. The victims are undoubtedly buried deep beneath sand, culm and rock, and can never be found.

I had a severe attack of catarrh, and became so deaf I could not hear common conversation. I suffered terribly from roaring in my head. I procured a bottle of Ely's Cream Balm, and in three weeks could hear as well as I ever could, and now I can say to all who are afflicted with the worst of diseases, catarrh, take one bottle of Ely's Cream Balm and be cured. It is worth $1,000 to any man, woman or child suffering from catarrh.—A. E. Newman, Grayling, Mich.

LIFE EVERLASTING.

[M. Sears Brooks in Springfield Republican.]

By the roadside it grows,
Lifts its white crown,
Where the blushing wild rose
Was trampled down.

To-day, I met my love
Of long ago.
Her hair was silvery white, and yet, the low
Sweet voice that charmed me
In th' olden days
Still spoke in softly modulated ways
Of books, and art, albeit wrinkles lay
Where once I watched the smiles
And dimples play.

My love—and yet 'twas not.
How was it time
Had spared to eye and voice their gracious prime?
How laid his touch on cheek,
On lip, and brow,
Saying, Thy friend is vanished, buried now—
Yet never reached that inner, sacred shrine
Save to enrich, adorn,
And make divine?
Go learn the secret. Changed we all must be;
Life from within is immortality.

A NEW YORK MOB.

ACCOUNT OF THE ATTACK ON THE TRIBUNE OFFICE IN 1863.

A Set of Alarmed Typos—Rioters Sacking the Office—Barricading the Doors—Charge of the Police—Navy Yard Bombs.

[The Journalist.]

"I have read Edmund Kirke's account, and other accounts of the attack on The Tribune office in 1863," said Amos Cummings in the Press club recently, "but none of them were written by any one who was a participant in that fight. I saw the whole thing from the beginning to the end. On the day before the riot I had been mustered out of service from the Twenty-sixth New Jersey volunteers at Newark, N. J. I had left a compositor's case in The Tribune office to join the regiment, and had served my time in the field. On receiving six months' pay and my discharge papers, I felt like a bird loosed from a cage.

"On the morning of the 13th I went to The Tribune office, and was surprised to see quite a crowd collected around the counting-room. The building where the draft was being made had been burned down on the preceding night and there was much excitement. All the militia had been sent to Pennsylvania to stop Gen. Lee's advance, and there was no regiment in the city. I went up-stairs into The Tribune composing-room to talk with the boys. Smith O'Brien, an old Tribune compositor, offered me $10 to sub for him, or work at his case that night. I took him up on the instant. All the compositors were alarmed, and if I had waited I could probably have got $50 bonus. Every man supposed that the office was going to be mobbed, and stood in fear of his life. I had hardly begun to distribute type when my brother who had served in the army with me, came in and accepted a bonus of $20 to work for another regular compositor.

SACKING THE OFFICE.

"The crowd in front of the office grew greater, and the air was filled with curses and imprecations. A few compositors deserted their cases early in the afternoon. Those who remained were extremely nervous, and did but little work. At twilight I went to the corner window on the top floor and looked out into Park place. The mob had grown until it reached across the street, and slopped over into the park. It was composed of boys and many men, who appeared to be respectable. The day was very hot, and many were in their shirt-sleeves. The sidewalk was packed so that pedestrians could not pass. The doors of the counting-room were closed, but the gas was lighted, and old Ephraim K. Jenny and a few of the clerks stood at their desks. The yelling and confusion was indescribable. I heard a jingling of glass on the pavement. I saw a rush and I knew that the doors had been broken open, and that the office was being sacked. I saw in the twilight bundles of newspapers, ledgers and stationery, hurled through the windows. A bundle of newspapers was caught by a man wearing a linen coat, whose ferocity was so great that he tore the loose Tribunes in bits with his teeth.

"The mob had possession of the counting room fully ten minutes. The affrighted compositors climbed up a narrow rickety stairway leading to the roof of the building, and made their escape through the scuttle on Tammany hall. Only four of them remained in the composing-room. These four were: Peter Hackett, now dead; Sylvester Bailey, now a compositor on The Sunday Democrat, my brother, also dead, and myself. After what I had seen at Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville, this row seemed to be only a farce. I could conceive of nothing more ridiculous. As to leaving the building, I never thought of it. We got the old printing "turtles," for there was no stereotyping then, together and barricaded the door of the composing-room with them. I had a revolver and the three men with me armed themselves with lead side-sticks. We knew that we could hold the narrow iron stairway against 1,000 men if necessary. Bailey and my brother had been in the army with me and were old soldiers. Peter Hackett had learned military tactics at Irish fairs.

"After barricading the doors I went to the front windows. The mob had set the counting room on fire, and many of them were in the street shouting to me to come down and avoid being burned with the building. I drew the revolver and was about to fire at the crowd when Myron Rooker, now editor of The Albany Press and Knickerbocker, and then night editor of The Tribune, caught me by the arm and said:

"'Don't shoot, for God's sake! It is bad enough as it is!'

"He had come up stairs from the editorial room and climbed over the 'turtles.' I took his advice. A part of the mob stood around the Spruce street entrance to the composing room, and several of the compositors, editors and reporters, who had tried to escape in that way, had been roughly handled.

A SQUAD OF POLICE.

"While I was standing at the window I saw a dark line of men coming up Spruce street. Very few gaslamps had been lighted. The upper windows of The Times building were filled with compositors and others watching the scene. The line of men proved to be a squad of police headed by Capt. Thomas Thorne, a warm friend of Horace Greeley. I could see them advancing with a steady front by the light in The Times building. Mr. Greeley was not in the office when the attack was made. He had left early in the afternoon and had narrowly escaped violence at the hands of the mob.

"Thorne's force came upon the rioters like a tornado. Clubs alone were used, but there was an occasional flash of pistols in the hands of the rioters. In one minute the plaza was cleared. Probably fifty men were writhing on the pavement, and it looked as though some of them had been killed. All, however, were wounded. The most of them were suffering from blows inflicted by the billies. It must have been about 7 o'clock in the evening when Thorne made his charge.

"I went over to the Park barracks and got some old soldiers who were quartered there to come over to The Tribune office and stand guard. Among them was Tom Holmes, of the Fifth Wisconsin regiment, a brother of Ned Holmes, now managing editor of The New York Dispatch. I remember that in walking through the debris of the counting-room Tom picked up a roll of greenbacks, aggregating over $200, which he afterward returned to Sinclair, the publisher of the paper. Thorne's assault had proved effective. There were no rioters in sight, and the square was entirely cleared. Not long afterward two guns were placed in front of The Times' building.

WORK OF FORTIFYING.

"It was not until near 9 o'clock that Edmund Kirke and Col. Julius Adams, who is still alive, came to The Tribune office and assumed charge of the defense. Meantime I had organized the men from the barracks, and a few of the returned compositors, into reliefs and had posted guards in every part of the building. Then the work of fortifying began. Barricades of paper taken from the press room were piled around the counting room, and a steam pipe from the press rooms was made ready for use in case of a renewal of the attack. With this pipe the attacking party could have been scalded with hot water.

"Before Col. Adams came urgent appeals for aid had been sent to the Brooklyn navy yard. About 11 o'clock a wagon-load of immense bombshells were sent over from the navy yard. Each shell was enclosed in a wooden box. Wooden spouts, shaped like a V, were sent with them. These spouts were to be placed in the windows of the editorial and composing-rooms, and, in case of a second attack, the shells were to be put in them and rolled out upon the heads of the mob below. They were round iron shells, about three times the size of a football, and were evidently made for use in mortars. The old soldiers laughed outright when they saw them. If one of those shells had been rolled out of the window and had fallen to the pavement and exploded it would have probably blown out the whole front of the building.

"All night long we stood on guard. At times there were reports that the rioters were returning in force, but they all proved false. The sun rose the next morning, and the situation was unchanged. The paper appeared as usual, and from that day to this there has not been an attack made on a newspaper office in New York city by a mob. Indeed, a mob would not stand much of a show in an assault upon the tall tower to-day."

Advice to those in Search of Health.

The peculiar character of disease, in the various localities through which we have passed, could not fail to strike an attentive observer. In each and all of them we find, usually, a morbid and unnatural excitation of the excreting organs, the skin, bowels, and kidneys, prevailing to a great extent. Irregular diuresis, profuse morbid perspiration, or no perspiration at all and a loose or constipated state of the bowels, together with a torpid or inactive condition of the kidneys. The liver, the most important organ of the body, was, in all these cases, deeply implicated, giving rise to all the distressing symptoms which usually attend an affection of this viscus, misleading the physician employed, and disappointing hopes of the patient that relief would surely follow a specific action of medicine upon the part diseased. By improper medicine, we have found every variety of complaint shut up in the system, and all the various avenues of Nature by which disease is expelled, closed against its exit, as completely as if it had been designed to blockade the system, to enable the destructive virus to finish its work of demolition. Our first object is, in all these cases, to apply such remedies as will reach the cause of the disease, remove not only the symptoms, but radically extirpate the disease itself.

Another class of diseases, and they are extremely numerous, Pulmonary affections. The worst character of this disease is scattered all over the country, as is attested by the pale, hectic or emaciated countenances to be met with and the almost unceasing recurrence of dry, hacking coughs. We have had, in many cases, to restore the equilibrium of the circulating fluids, to expel the destructive poisons given at one period and another, and commence the difficult but extremely necessary work of opening the closed avenues through which the effete and deleterious matter that continued to obstruct them might be removed. This we have amply and satisfactorily succeeded in doing. In no case, however, must it be understood that we propose to put new lungs into the thorax where they were destroyed, for let human ingenuity and skill be ever so great, it is not in the power of science to supply so vital a deficiency. We have succeeded in relieving innumerable apparently hopeless cases, and have laid the foundation for many important cures. The cure of pulmonary complaints has ever baffled the efforts of physicians, from the insuperable difficulties presenting themselves in reaching the disease by direct medicine. The circulating fluids only, which carry health and strength to all parts of the body, are, luckily for humanity, capable of bearing along with them, in their course through the system, the means of purification.

This is the plan adopted by nature to heal herself, and there is little doubt that, no matter what the disease may be, it may effectually be reached, relieved and cured by proper correcting medicines. By a system, adopted by us, we compel the blood, which in Pulmonary Consumption is charging the interior organs of the body, to leave them in a necessary measure, and circulate on the surface; and then purify the whole system from the morbid accumulations which fill the circulating vessels. We never in any case attempt to doctor symptoms—such a course is not only injudicious, but is productive of the worst effects. Those who palliate only will never succeed in curing chronic diseases.

The causes originating it must first be removed, and the fabrics of the system, which threaten to fall in ruins in some unguarded moment, strengthened by all the skill and art to be found in the resources of medicine.

The innumerable instances of bitter disappointment, or deferred hopes to which patients suffering under chronic diseases are consigned, have arisen, in some degree, as much from their own inattention as from those whom they have employed as physicians. They have not sought to reason for themselves, but have blindly followed the advice of others. And it may be safely set down as the rule ever to be relied upon, that all such instances will result in failure and disappointment. A slight attention to two or three rules will greatly benefit all, and enable them to trace out the course and operation of the medicine upon which they intend to depend for a cure.

The first of these rules is to ascertain clearly what is the matter with them. This the doctor ought to be able to tell them precisely and unequivocally—for by this they will be able to discriminate somewhat between judicious and injudicious medicines. Whenever the harmony of the system has been overthrown by disease, it must be re-established by proper medical treatment, or continual discord is the result, and you may be assured that, unless proper medicines be employed, unless there is some specific affinity between the disease and medicine used, no result of a beneficial nature will take place.

A large acquaintance with medicine, and a close application of many years to the history and operation of diseases of long standing, have enabled us to treat successfully every variety of chronic disease. We reject all poisonous and depletive agents, whether mineral or vegetable. Of the unity of our remedies thousands can testify, and in no case can they be used without benefit. Our object is to invigorate rather than reduce, build up, rather than destroy.

Most of the offices we now have we have visited every week for years, for consultation with patients laboring under different forms of lingering diseases. The success attending our efforts, the continuance of our visits, should convince those wavering in opinion regarding the efficacy of our system of treating these ailments.

We have made our visits regularly for years, and shall for years continue to do so, and will be for consultation upon all diseases of the lungs, liver, heart, throat, stomach, nerves and blood, on our next visit at the Myers House in this city on Saturday, the 16th of January.

SPRING FEVER

At this season nearly every one needs to use some sort of tonic. IRON enters into almost every physician's prescription for those who need building up.

TAYLOR'S CHEROKEE REMEDY

OF SWEET GUM AND MULLEIN.

The sweet gum, as gathered from a tree of the same name, growing along the small streams in the Southern States, contains a stimulating expectorant principle that loosens the phlegm producing the early morning cough, and stimulates the child to throw off the false membrane in croup and whooping-cough. When combined with the healing mucilaginous principle in the mullein plant of the old fields, presents in TAYLOR'S CHEROKEE REMEDY OF SWEET GUM AND MULLEIN the finest known remedy for Coughs, Croup, Whooping-cough and Consumption; and so palatable, any child is pleased to take it. Ask your druggist for it. Price, 25c. and $1. Walter A. Taylor, Atlanta, Ga.

Important to Ladies.

Women are everywhere using and recommending Parker's Tonic because they have learned from experience that it speedily overcomes despondency, indigestion or weakness in the back or kidneys, and other troubles peculiar to the sex.

"I have long been a sufferer from female complaints. Have tried physicians and advertised remedies, but without any relief whatever. With but little hopes of receiving any benefit, I bought a bottle of Parker's Tonic. The effect of that one bottle was so satisfactory that I kept on using it, and am to-day well and strong. It certainly is the remedy for suffering women and my advice to all is to use it."MRS. N. DOUGLASS, 301, West Indiana Street., Chicago. Ill.

If You Want to be Happy.

If you want to be happy you must be good,
A maxim all right in its way;
But a far better one, if understood,
Is what I have now got to say.
If you want to be happy you must be well,
Whatever the station you serve in;
And of all the medicines one bears the lead,
The good SAMARITAN NERVINE.

I once tried every sort of cure.
To restore me to good health;
And spent in vain, of that I'm sure,
Considerable share of wealth;
But all was vain, till a friend advised,
In a manner most deserving',
The medicine he most highly prized,
RICHMOND'S SAMARITAN NERVINE.

I took his advice; in one short week,
I felt no further pain;
For doctors no longer I had to seek,
For I never felt sick again.
I'm healthy and happy the whole day long:
So if health be worth preservin',
The constant burden of my song
Is try SAMARITAN NERVINE.

T'will cure the young, t'will heal the old,
T'will wake the whole world better;
At St. Joseph, Missouri, the medicine is sold:
Drop Dr. Richmond a letter:
He'll give you advice far better than wealth,
He'll point out the way to preserve in
The best condition your newly found health,
By the use of SAMARITAN NERVINE.

Brieflets.

—Polo to-night.

—Common council night.

—The polo game at the rink to-night will commence at nine o'clock sharp.

—I know that that garment was bought at Bostwick & Sons', because it fits so nicely.

—Galesburgs, champions of the west, vs. Janesville, in a polo game at the rink to-night.

—Several of our school teachers will attend the meeting of the State Teachers' association at Madison this week.

—To-night is to be a special occasion at the Court street church. A distinguished minister from abroad will be present.

—Crystal Temple of Honor No. 32, regular weekly meeting this evening—lodge room in the Judd block, North Main street.

—Anderson's full band will give an all-night dance at the Rifles' armory on Friday evening, January 1st, 1886. Tickets 50 cents.

—Janesville Lodge No. 55, A. F. and A. M., hold their regular semi-monthly communication this evening at Masonic hall. Installation of officers.

—A special meeting of the Business Men's association will be held at the club rooms to-morrow evening at 7:30 o'clock, for the purpose of considering railroad matters.

—On Christmas morning, while attending the funeral of the late George Dehls, the Masons lost a pair of silver compasses, or dividers. Finder will please leave them at this office.

—It was very quiet in police circles today, and the only business in any of the courts was a motion before the circuit court for a new trial in the case of Jeffris against Kelly. The motion was overruled.

—The celebrated Galesburg, Ill., polo team will (arrive here at 5:50 p. m. and play our team to-night and to-morrow night. The Galesburgs have a big reputation but we will venture the prediction that they will not have a walk away with our boys.

—A public installation of the officers of La Prairie Grange, will take place at the hall January 2d, at 2 o'clock p. m. Hon. H. C. Adams, of Dane county, will deliver an address on that occasion. He is a very eloquent and able speaker. All are invited.

—Bill poster Pierson has hung some very attractive paper announcing the appearance of the great Elliott family, seven in number, the greatest bicycle and unicycle riders in the world, who appear at the rink three nights and two matinees this week, commencing Thursday.

—A concert for the benefit of the Girls' Social club is in preparation, and will take place January 5th. There will be some special features of great interest. The proceeds of the concert are to pay indebtedness incurred in repairing the building and furnishing the rooms. When this debt is paid the club will be able to pay all its current expenses.

—The public should not fail to call at the Guards' armory and see the beautiful display of articles exhibited at the fair under the auspices of the Sisters of Mercy. Saturday evening the hall was well filled, and all present assisted, financially and socially, in contributing toward the success desired. There is much artistic work displayed, and an examination of the same will satisfy the most fastidious. A dime will admit you.

—The Parnell club held a meeting at the Rifles armory yesterday afternoon for the purpose of electing delegates to attend the National convention to be held in Chicago in January. On assembling it was announced that the Chicago convention had been postponed, consequently the Janesville club deferred the election of delegates. After a few rousing speeches and several songs, the meeting adjourned for two weeks.

—"Yes, the wicked stand on slippery places," he remarked as they walked home from the revival last night. Just then his feet slipped on the icy sidewalk, and sitting down very emphatically he heard the idol of his heart retort indignantly "Well, I'm no more wicked than some other folks, if I do stand on slippery places while you fall, and I think its very rude in you to say such things." They won't speak to each other for some time if looks are any indication of feelings.

—The Christmas gathering of the Sunday school of the Congregational church was held at the chapel on Saturday evening at half-past six o'clock. A choice programme, consisting of the cantata of the "Christmas Bells," etc., rendered by the school. At the conclusion of the entertainment the children were treated to an excellent supper, which had been provided for the occasion, after which the children had a merry time, all returning to their homes with glad hearts and joyous spirits.

—The revival meeting last night was very largely attended, and many were unable to gain admission. Mr. Harrison spoke with his accustomed energy, from the text, "Why halt ye between two opinions." The sermon was very impressive, and many were persuaded to longer halt. Mr. Harrison has decided to remain another week. In the morning about thirty united with Court Street church, many of them being young people. Meetings will be held every afternoon and evening this week to all of which the public is cordially invited.

—Rockford Gazette: "Articles of incorporation have been filed for the two following roads: The Bureau and Northwestern railroad. The road commences in Bureau county and runs northeasterly through the counties of LaSalle, Lee, Ogle, DeKalb, Boone, to some point on the north line of McHenry county. Chicago will have the principal office of said company. The capital stock of said company will be $3,500,000. The second road is called the Wisconsin Central. It starts at Chicago, runs through Cook and Lake counties to Wisconsin state line, also in a westerly direction through Cook and DuPage counties to Elgin, then in a northwesterly direction through the central part of McHenry county to the state line, also from Huntley, Ill., to Danlieth, through McHenry, Boone, Winnebago, Stephenson and Jo Daviess counties, also a line from Belvidere and Rockford each to Beloit, Wis. Principal office at Chicago. Capital stock $2,000,000. The incorporators have already begun working in the interests of the roads. A meeting of the stockholders of the Bureau and Northwestern was held in Chicago Saturday to consider questions of importance."

CONCORDIA'S CHRISTMAS.

A Family Gathering at Concordia Hall on Saturday Evening.

Concordia hall, on Saturday night, was the scene of one of the merriest family gatherings ever witnessed in this city. It was the celebration of Christmas and the distribution of presents to the children by families connected with the society. The large hall had been appropriately trimmed with evergreens, a convenient stage erected at one end, which was flanked on either side with a beautiful Christmas tree laden with brilliant mottoes and illuminated by hundreds of wax candles. It is the custom of Concordia society to celebrate Christmas by a social reunion of all the families of members, including the little ones, the celebration being for the special benefit of the latter, at which presents are distributed by members to all. The Christmas celebration on Saturday evening was far ahead of any previous efforts of this society, and was of a character to reflect honor and credit on that organization. A fine musical programme was an interesting feature of the evening, consisting of songs, duets, medleys and instrumental music. The programme being as follows:

Christmas carol—Concordia.
Zither solo—Arthur Heber.
Song, solo,—Gustave Hoerich.
Duett—Miss Clara and Mr. August Hoerich.
Zither solo—Arthur Heber.
Solo—Miss Julia Kneff, Miss Ida Buchholz, accompanist.
Song, (comic)—Concordia.

At the conclusion of the Christmas carol Mr. August Hoerich, on behalf of the singers of the society, presented Mr John M. Kneff, the popular leader, a handsome baton, ivory handle and gold mountings, as a Christmas token of the esteem in which he is held by his associates.

During the evening every person present, including the children, was given a present, all of which were drawn by duplicate numbers from a box, the numbers having previously been distributed. Much merriment was caused as the presents were handed out. The singing was excellent, showing much pains and training by the members of the society. Tables were set in the hall, and many families partook of their Christmas picnic supper in this appropriate and merry gathering of the members of Concordia, and all were happy.

Personal.

—Captain John Vaughn, of Racine was in the city Sunday.

—Miss Mary Airis is spending two weeks among her friends in Oshkosh.

—Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Clark, of Chicago, spent Christmas in the city. Dr. Clark returned to-day, his wife remaining for a few days visit with relatives and friends.

—Mr. Will J. Hield has returned home accompanied by his bride. They will make their home at the residence of the parents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. George Hield, of the first ward.

—Miss Maud Fitz, of Chicago is in the city on a short visit and is the guest of Miss Jennie Hayes, of the first ward.

—Mr. R. J. McMillan, one of the heavy lumbermen of Oshkosh, spent Sunday in the city the guest of his old friend, Mr. Beckwith, of the Grand hotel. Mr. McMillan was here to secure the services of the Rev. Thomas Harrison, and proposed to become individually responsible for the expenses of a series of meetings in Oshkosh. The revivalist will probably accept the invitation at a date to be determined later.

"Gentle as the Breeze of Evening."

This line of an old hymn is quite appropriate when applied to "Pleasant Purgative Pellets." "I don't like to take pills if I can avoid it," we often hear persons say, "because they constipate me so", now the "Pellets" never do this. They are so gentle and mild that their effect is almost precisely similar to a natural movement of the bowels, and no unpleasant effects are left behind.

How to Pronounce "Mikado."

How do you pronounce Mikado? The historian has heard the following seven distinct and separate styles:

Me-kar-dough.
Mick-aid-oo,
My-kay-lough.
Mike-ah-dough.
Mike-an-doo.
Mike-a-do.
Mo-cad-der.

With sixteen provinces to hear from. A Japanese school for teaching the correct pronunciation of the name might be introduced with effect in the presentation of the "Mikado", or else the "three little maids from school" might be made to discuss it as a side issue.

The correct pronunciation of course, is Mik-kah-dough," laying an equal stress on each syllable. To philologists this will be what is technically known as a "chestnut."—Boston Record.

The ladies interested in the Girls' Social club, are requested to meet at the rooms of the club on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock. Business of importance is to be considered,

M. W. FURSLOW, Treasurer.

The Weather.

At seven o'clock yesterday morning the thermometer indicated 23 degrees above zero. Cloudy with south wind. At 1 o'clock p. m. the register was 35 degrees above zero. For the corresponding hours one year ago the register was 20 and 32 degrees above zero. At seven o'clock this morning the thermometer indicated 35 degrees above zero. Cloudy with south wind. At one o'clock p. m. the register was 38 degrees above zero. Cloudy with south wind. For the corresponding hours one year ago the register was 34 and 44 degrees above zero.

OBITUARY.

RICHARD INMAN.

Last night another of Rock county's pioneers was called to his reward and his family was left to mourn. The deceased, Richard Inman, was about ninety years old, and had until very recently enjoyed reasonably good health. His death was caused by severe cold contracted a number of days ago, and which settled on his lungs. He was well known in Rock county, as a successful farmer, and a good citizen and his death will be sincerely mourned. Besides a wife he leaves a family of two sons and two daughters, a son and daughter having preceded him over the dark river No time has yet been fixed for the funeral which will be held at his late home in Afton as soon as the relatives can be notified.

MISS JULIA FULLER.

This morning at half past four o'clock the spirit of Miss Julia Fuller was taken from its earthly surroundings and wafted to the other shore. The deceased had been a sufferer for several years from dropsy and during the past six months she had been confined to her bed. It was known for some time that she could not live long, but though her death was not a surprise it will occasion much genuine regret as Miss Fuller has many relatives in this city, and has made many firm friends during her life here.

The funeral has not yet been announced but will be held from her late home at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Buck, in the fourth ward. Due notice of the time will be given.

HOSEA TOWNSEND.

That dreaded foe, typhoid fever, came into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hosea Townsend, of Magnolia, this morning, and carried off the head of the family. The deceased was twenty-five years of age and had been sick for some time. He was a young man of great promise and his untimely death is a hard blow to his wife. The time of the funeral has not yet been fixed.

The Smith & Corliss Orchestra.

Smith & Corliss' orchestra is having a great demand for dancing music this season, and have been called to many places out of the city. Commencing on the 14th of this month the orchestra have filled engagements at Polo, Ill, Dec. 14th, Freeport, Ill., Dec. 15th, Mt. Carrol, Dec. 16th, Evansville, Wis., Dec. 17th, EauClaire, Wis., Dec. 18th, Augusta, Wis., Dec. 19th, Black River Falls, Wis Dec. 21st, Elroy, Wis., Dec. 22d, Baraboo Wis., Dec. 23d, No. 1 Fire Co., Janesville, Dec. 24th, K. of P. club, Dec. 25th, and will play at Rochelle, Ill., Dec. 26th, Oregon, Ill., Dec. 29th, Black River Falls, Wis. Polo.

Last evening was the occasion of a very large attendance at the skating rink, the attraction being a game of polo between Galesburg and Detroit, Mich., clubs, which has been the common talk of the city for the past week. The people expected to see a very close and interesting game, as the Detroit boys had secured the cream of the polo profession and came down to "do 'em up" in short order and they were not disappointed. The visiting club played a scare game at first, but soon found that they had no "snap" and went to work in dead earnest. They did some very nice work but at the end of 20 minutes playing were found with a dazed sort of an expression on their faces with three straight goals for Galesburg.—Galesburg Republican Register.

There were all the evidences of a coming storm; but when he drew from his pocket a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup then came a calm, for the baby had the croup and would now get well.

Important.

The Knights of Honor will hold their annual meeting this evening at the office of Dimock & Hayner. Every member should be present as the election of officers and other matters of importance will come before the meeting.

Call at Sanborn & Cunniff's and see the bargains they are offering in double blankets. They also have a few good coal stoves left, which they would like to exchange for cash.

MARRIED.

HIELD-FREEMAN.

"In Minneapolis, Minn., December 24th, 1885, by the Rev. W. T. Chase, D. D., Mr. Willard J. Hield, of Janesville, Wis., and Eva P. Freeman, daughter of R. G. Freeman, Esq., of Minneapolis."

The above brief announcement was received from the officiating clergyman this morning, and we gladly publish, at the same time extending our compliments to the happy pair, they having already arrived at their home in this city. Mr. Hield has resided in Janesville from childhood and is recognized as a young man of sterling character and business integrity. His many friends will wish him all the happiness possible to the new associations of wedded life and a long and prosperous journey through the years, with the companion whom he has chosen from our neighboring state.

Who of us are without our troubles, be they small or large? The blessings of health are best appreciated when we are sick and in pain. A hacking cough, a severe cold or any throat or lung difficulty are very troublesome; but all these may be quickly and permanently cured by Dr. Bigelow's Positive cure. Safe and pleasant for children. Price 50 cents by all druggists.

What Constitutes a Public Street.

The following, taken from a Chicago paper, will be of interest to our people, as we understand City Attorney Smith holds the same views as regards our streets:

"In rendering an opinion that Shields avenue is not a public street and that a fence across it need not be removed, Corporation Counsel Winston gives his opinion as to what constitutes a public street. Aside from the streets that have become municipal thoroughfares by twenty years' travel or by condemnation, to constitute a public street requires a donation by the owner of the land and an acceptance by the city. The acceptance may be made by ditching, grading or making other improvements, by an order of the council, or by the municipal officer authorized for that purpose.

Mr. Winston holds that the approval of a plat of lots by the superintendent of assessments, as required by the city charter, is not an acceptance of the streets and alleys dedicated by the plat to public use. The object of this approval is to secure a uniform plan in laying out streets and alleys. The municipal code requires the city comptroller to accept streets and alleys. Until the street is accepted the city cannot be required to exercise even reasonable care to keep it in a safe condition, and is not liable for damages occurring by reason of defects in it."

Pew Rents.

The seats in the First Baptist church, of Janesville, Wis., will be rented for the year 1886 on Monday and Tuesday evenings of Dec. 28th and 29th, 1885.

BY ORDER OF TRUSTEES.
Dated Dec. 26th 1885.

THE PERSONALITY OF GOD.

Henry Ward Beecher Will Have No Hide-Bound Creeds.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Rev. Henry Ward Beecher preached Sunday morning from Corinthians, iii, 9th verse: "For we are laborers together with God: ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building." He said:

We must think of God as a person, although the limitation of human personality is such as by no means to cover the whole extent of what would be divine personality; but our personality represents a more nearly perfect conception of the divine existence than any other point in human experience. "Personality" may not express him fully, yet it is necessary to us. Nor is that necessity in any degree diminished by saying that our conceptions of God must be in their very nature limited. As far as they are to be had at all, they must be had with the limitations that belong to human conditions. Any other method of thinking of God evaporates the divine being. That he is a "tendency to righteousness" is all very well in an essay or a poem, but as an object of thought, influence, and communion, it really takes away all thought of God. No man ever wants to throw his arms around the neck of a tendency. If we are to worship God, and to love God, and to obey God, there must be something that shall answer to the training that we have had in human life, and along which training our affections and our obediences and our reverence have had their outflow. "We are fellow-workers with God."

Physical nature has but a very limited constitution in itself. Physical things have in themselves, when let alone, a very limited movement; very limited power of outplay, and an immense power of being played out, provided you can get some energy to do it. And as the whole universe is the outplay of God's thought and will, so in our limited section of it we find that the created universe as it exists in civilization is the result of the outplay of our thought and our will upon the materials that lie back, comparatively speaking, inert. Nature gives the material, but it is the human intellect and the human mind that gives to those materials any power to be other than dead or to crawl in the very narrowest circle of existence.

But then, there is a distinct application of it, too. We are "God's husbandry," we are "God's building." If I were to take the latter I should steer off in the direction of art and mechanics. I prefer to take the other. "Ye are God's husbandry." We bear some such relation to creation as God himself does. It is as if God created raw material, and set us as apprentices and journeymen to work it up.

"Did you ever think of the words "Fruit of the spirit of God" that is, God is a gardener, and is raising fruit. You are all of you part of God's garden (I pity the gardener often!) But the fruit of the spirit—let me name them, a few of them, and ask you how the year has been in your husbandry. The fruit of the spirit is "love." Has yours been deepened, has it been purified, has it had wings that bore it toward heaven; has it brooded and brought forth 10,000 infections of love. And so I might go through the whole catalogue. "Love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance." Do you know that that is God Almighty's creed? These are the articles of the creed of Christ. Away with all your hide-bound creeds, and your ordinances, and your governments. They are all very well, but a government is not fit to eat, any more than a rail fence is. It is something that protects your field, so that when you raise harvests inside they shall be good for something. But here is husbandry—the other is an exterior surrounding influence and the basic foundation, but this is the harvest. If a man asks me: "What do you believe?" I tell him the whole of the 22d and 23d verses of the fifth chapter of Galatians—that is what I believe in; that is my creed. It is the work of Christ in the human soul when the soul is willing. That is my farm, that is my garden, and that is my husbandry, and if anybody says: "Are you lax?" No! I am not lax in theology! I am stringent, I am radical: but I insist upon it that it shall be the theology of the heart of life, and not merely of logic and philosophy.

And this is the inside of the spiritual celebration of Christmas time—the examination of what estate you are in; what the year has done, what you have done for the year, and what your soul is as a garden or a farm. And I beseech of you, dear brethren, because the sermon is fancy winged, do not think of it as a poem or song for under forms of fancy it is full of the solidest practical fruit that concerns you, that concerns me and that concerns God.

A Valuable Medical Treatise.

The edition for 1886 of the sterling Medical Annual, known as Hostetter's Almanac, is now ready, and may be obtained, free of cost, of druggists and general country dealers in all parts of the United States, Mexico, and indeed in every civilized portion of the Western Hemisphere. This Almanac has been issued regularly at the commencement of every year for over one fifth of a century. It combines, with the soundest practical advice for the preservation and restoration of health, a large amount of interesting and amusing light reading, and the calendar, astronomical calculations, chronological items, etc., are prepared with great care, and will be found entirely accurate. The issue of Hostetter's Almanac for 1886 will probably be the largest edition of a medical work ever published in any country. The proprietors, Messrs. Hostetter & Co., Pittsburg Pa., on receipt of a 2 cent stamp, will forward a copy by mail to any person who cannot procure one in the neighborhood.
